

city college news

March 1: learn from and with the best...

Mark March 1, 2002 on your calendar. George Brown College will be hosting the next college-wide staff development event "Ramping Up For Success" at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

"If you're interested in learning from some of the best and understanding how Vision 2003 will really work, this is a rare and rich opportunity," says Michael Cooke, VP of Academic Excellence. "In selecting our resource persons and putting together the agenda, we've made sure there's something for everyone, from academic excellence to globalization, from student service to teamwork, from leadership to staff satisfaction."

He says the design team is now finalizing an impressive roster of speakers that includes political, business and academic leaders, media personalities and staff development experts who will lead a wide range of thought-provoking panels and workshops. "It's an ideal opportunity for staff to gain exposure to an incredibly diverse and dynamic group of people. Their knowledge and insight will help all of us better understand what Vision 2003 is all about, what kind of difference it will make to the college, and how each of us can help the college to get there.

"It's also a chance to spend time with colleagues you don't normally interact with. We have loads of experience and knowledge we can share with each other. Invariably, we learn and we have fun when we're together like this."

Watch for more information on registration details, speaker profiles and presentations in later issues of City College News. "There are lots of sessions to choose from but remember to sign up early so you have the best chance of getting your first choices in seminars," advises Cooke.

For more information on "Ramping Up For Success," contact Hilde Zimmer at 416-415-4724.

Some of the best who will be participating in "Ramping Up For Success":

Samy Chong, Founder of the Ho Lee Chow Restaurant chain

David Crombie, Former Toronto Mayor and Founder of Waterfront Regeneration Trust

Ursula Franklin, Professor of Metallurgy and Massey Lecturer at the University of Toronto

Crystal Kuykendall, Author, Lawyer, past Director National Alliance of Black Educators

Mary Lawson, Vice-President of Dalerose Homes and GBC Governor

Stuart Maclean, Host of CBC's Vinyl Café and Professor of Journalism at Ryerson University

Akela Peoples, Executive Director of Women in Motion

Rob Pritchard, President of Torstar Corporation

Karen Radford, Vice-President of Customer Service at Telus

Shirley Sharkey, CEO of St. Elizabeth Health Care and GBC Governor

Haroon Siddiqui, Award-winning Journalist for the Toronto Star

Doug Sole, Percussionist with Soul Drums

Patricia Thornton, Staff Satisfaction Consultant and Workshop Leader

Jeff Santos packages pastries at the Hospitality and Tourism's Christmas Bake Sale on December 10. Student-produced baking is available throughout the year from Monday to Friday between 12:30 and 1:30pm. Call 416-415-2515 after 9:00am for the daily selection.

The Annual Staff Children's Winter Celebration was held on December 8 at Casa Loma campus. More than 175 children and 140 parents attended the event, which included arts and crafts, mini-car rides and other fun activities assisted by 75 volunteers.

Athletics Manager is a man of strong convictions

Alex Barbier, Manager of Athletics and Student Life at George Brown College, is a man of strong convictions. Having spent the past 27 years in teaching athletics – with the exception of playing one year of professional hockey in Europe – he has worked hard at instilling a sense of commitment and fair play in others.

When Barbier isn't managing the college's 11 varsity athletic programs, he and his staff of six are busy putting together a variety of inter-collegiate sports, intra-mural recreation, and community-based programs. In addition, they manage a range of campus-wide Student Life programs, including such favourites as Talent Treks and African Heritage Month activities.

In his younger days, Barbier had no particular preference when it came to playing sports. He tried everything, and says that experience taught him to value diversity in all areas. "One of my favourite sayings is from John Wooden, a former UCLA coach who said 'An athlete should go out and experience the world, and not just the sport.' In my mind, the great athletes see the broader picture and that a particular sport is only part of one's overall success."

For Barbier sports are, above all else, about the community. "I feel very strongly that the benefits derived from sports are of value to the community. It's not just about winning. I'd rather watch kids playing sports in a park than go to a professional game any day, because that's where sports really count. I guess it's all in how you define success."

He's particularly proud of the depth of the athletics programs available at George Brown and credits staff with helping him build one of the most diverse college athletics programs in Ontario. Among other distinctions, George Brown is one of only three colleges in the province with a team that participates in the Canadian Inter-Collegiate Baseball Association.

Sports excellence is far from being his only focus for stu-

and part-time staff that is committed to helping students meet their goals. "What's really great is I get to work with a caring staff that shares

Alex Barbier (left) with members of the Athletics and Student Life team: Lisa Trudel, Dwayne Hines, Erika Forde and Marc Madramootoo.

dents, however. Barbier says every effort is put into tracking the athletes' academic progress. "You have to appreciate the efforts in the classroom, as well as on the gym floor or in the field. They have to understand that balance is important."

Barbier says he appreciates having the chance to work with a highly motivated full-

a fundamental belief in participation and good sportsmanship. They have been instrumental in bringing a wider range of programs to the students, and what they do within the college and the community is respected and appreciated by people who come in contact with them. They're the real reason for the success of our programs."

Group Dynamics students apply skills in the real world

This year, the Child and Youth Worker program's Group Dynamics course decided to move part of its teaching out of the classroom and take a more hands-on approach to delivering course content. During the Fall semester, more than 100 day and evening students took on an assignment to develop and organize a fund-raising effort of their choosing.

According to Rick Kelly, teacher in the Child and Youth Worker program, the effort "allowed students to learn about effective group processes in a very practical way. It became education in the service of the community."

Kelly reports that the results were exceptional, with some groups raising as much as $1000. "But the rewards weren't necessarily monetary. One group organized a city-wide basketball tournament with players from across the Greater Toronto Area to promote community involvement. It was a wonderful way for them to demonstrate their professionalism, responsibility to the community and good citizenship."

The charities included the college food bank, Out of the Cold, Starlight Foundation, Make-a-Wish Foundation,

Rosalie Hall, Nellie's Hostel, Share the Magic for the National Ballet, Robertson

House, the Brampton Minor Hockey League and the John Innes Community Centre.

Child and Youth Worker program teacher Roberto Allen (centre, seated), with a group of second-year students in the program.

SuperBuild construction starting at Casa Loma and St. James

The long-awaited physical transformation of George Brown will begin this month as the college breaks ground on its most massive building program in three decades.

At the end of the 18-month, $29-million building program, Casa Loma campus will look dramatically different, and the college will have lots of bright new teaching space and student service facilities. As a result of the building, the college will have capacity for 2,300 more full-time students in fall 2003 – a 25 per cent increase from current enrolment.

Construction crews are expected to put up hoardings in December at Casa Loma and St. James as the first visible step in the college's two on-campus SuperBuild projects, says Bashar Amer, George Brown's Director of Facilities Management.

A third SuperBuild project, created jointly with Ryerson University, is currently under construction at Ryerson's campus.

Once crews have hoardings in place they will move quickly to demolish 146 Kendal Ave. at Casa Loma and begin digging into the parking lot behind the Hospitality and Tourism building at 300 Adelaide Street East. Then new four-story buildings will be erected on the parking lot and at Casa Loma.

The beginning of work on the two sites comes after almost two years of planning and preparation that began when Ontario government funding for the projects was announced in February, 2000.

Since then, college staff have been working with City of Toronto politicians and staff, as well as project manager Consult Hanscomb Project Inc. and architects Moffat-Kinoshita, in planning and designing the buildings and other changes to the campuses.

The $10 million St. James building, by Kenaidan Construction Group Ltd., will add 48,000 square feet of space, most of which will be classroom space to accommodate up to 1200 new students. The space will be used primarily by School of Business students.

Eastern Construction has been awarded the $19 million contract to build the four-level and basement, 117,000 square foot building at Casa Loma that will replace two old buildings (146 Kendal Ave. and 37 Dartnell Ave.) for a net increase of 23,000 square feet. The new building will feature classrooms and labs for Faculty of Technology students, a Student Centre, food court, restaurant, meeting rooms and offices. Once construction of the new building is complete, 37 Dartnell will be demolished and a parkette built on its site.

Both new facilities at St. James and Casa Loma will feature additional computer labs, classrooms, office space and better wheelchair accessibility. The St. James building will also have a new pedestrian walkway from Richmond Street as well as a walkway from Adelaide Street and entry points on three floors through the Hospitality and Tourism Building. An elevator is currently being installed in the Hospitality Building just inside the front doors. Right now, people in wheelchairs have to enter the building through the rear entrance off the parking lot.

Construction on the new buildings will run uninterrupted through two winters.

To minimize disruption to staff and students, and to avoid hindering area traffic, the two building sites will be isolated from the campuses, with the least busy streets designated for use by the builders. The project team will conduct regular health and safety inspections as the project progresses. There are no planned interruptions of power, heating, ventilation or cooling systems of existing buildings.

Trees will be planted around the new St. James and Casa Loma facilities as part of the project.

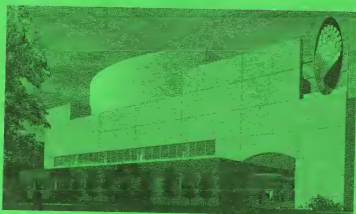

"We're not simply putting up a new building, we're attempting to change the entire landscape of the campus...With the new facilities and landscaped grounds, we will create a whole new image for Casa Loma," says Amer.

The SuperBuild program also includes the addition of two floors to Ryerson University's Eric Palin Hall. These will be devoted to programs in the new jointly-operated Centre for Studies in Community Health, including George Brown's Early Childhood Education and Activation Co-ordinator (Gerontology) programs. Construction began this fall and is scheduled for completion by the summer of 2002.

For the next 18 months City College News will be providing a monthly progress report on this very important initiative.

The new building on the Casa Loma campus will replace both 146 Kendal Ave. and 37 Dartnell Ave.

The new building on the St. James campus will replace the parking lot now behind the Hospitality and Tourism building.

Marketing students caroled around the college on December 6 in support of a Toronto family in need. Through the donations they raised, carolers (l to r) Alexandra Tran, Gillian Hutchinson, Tricia Van Veen, Tara Farrell, and Mary Jane Hill are providing a local family with necessities as well as wish-list items such as winter jackets. Their effort was organized by the Red Door Shelter.

The George Brown College Senior's Association granted scholarships to three nursing students on October 17. Tobie Isaacs (second from left), who presented the awards, stands here with (l to r) Michael Cooke, VP of Academic Excellence; Pat Coward, Dean of Community Services; and the three scholarship recipients, Sheila Cannon, Sasha Ali and Xiaoyun Yu.

Nine Hospitality and Tourism students volunteered along with celebrity chefs at the Starlight Children's Foundation fund raiser on November 10. Starlight Children's Foundation is a worldwide organization that grants wishes and provides entertainment to chronically and terminally ill children aged 4 through 18 years. More than 700 guests attended the event held at the International Plaza Hotel. Chefs for the evening included Michael Smith from "The Chef at Large" and Pasquale, "The Singing Chef." John Higgins, executive chef at the King Edward Hotel – seen here with George Brown students Voulas Kalaitzis (left) and Andrea Pavic – was in charge of hors d'oeuvres.

upcoming events

Web Page Development Workshop - Learning Innovations & Academic Development

Friday, December 14 (9:00am to 12:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Ave., Studio C, 4th Floor

Call Linda Purser at (416) 415-2000, ext. 4661 to register. For more information, contact Shirley Lesch, ext. 2867.

Free Career Planning Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, January 14 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 1 to register.

news briefs

George Brown answering future staffing needs

A recent study from the Association of College of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario says that Ontario colleges will be facing a hiring crunch by 2006. According to the report, Ontario's community colleges will need to hire more than 7,000 new faculty and staff – which represents more than half its current workforce – due to retirements and an anticipated boom in enrolment. Nancy Hood, Executive Director of Human Resources for George Brown College, says that, assuming the accuracy of the projections for enrolment and retirements and the availability of government funding to support staffing increases, George Brown will be hiring approximately 100 new staff a year through to 2006.

ECE students and faculty are Jamaica bound

On December 8th, graduates from the Early Childhood Education Program at George Brown, along with faculty members Gail Hunter and Lynn Wilson, convened at the Beaches Recreation Centre to swim 1200 metres – the distance from Montego Bay to Negril. The swimathon was part of a fund-raising campaign to send the group to Savanna La Mar, just outside of Negril, Jamaica from April 26 to May 11. There they will be volunteering in primary schools to develop an understanding and appreciation of another culture and to work as part of a team with teachers in Jamaica. The fund-raising efforts are to support travel expenses, as well as to purchase resources such as books, puzzles, art supplies and materials to create teaching aids. The next fund-raising event will be a children's concert in the Casa Loma campus auditorium on Saturday, January 26 from 2:00pm to 4:00pm.

city college news

is a publication of the Communications and Marketing Department, George Brown College, at 200 King St. East, Toronto, M5T 2T9 Room 542E
Story ideas? Contact Rosalie Starkey at 415-4842 or rstarkey@gbrown.on.ca
Editor: Ed Tracy Writers: Denise Deveau and Neil McGillivray
Contents copyright George Brown College, 2001.

city college news

March 1: learn from and with the best...

Mark March 1, 2002 on your calendar. George Brown College will be hosting the next college-wide staff development event "Ramping Up For Success" at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

"If you're interested in learning from some of the best and understanding how Vision 2003 will really work, this is a rare and rich opportunity," says Michael Cooke, VP of Academic Excellence. "In selecting our resource persons and putting together the agenda, we've made sure there's something for everyone, from academic excellence to globalization, from student service to teamwork, from leadership to staff satisfaction."

He says the design team is now finalizing an impressive roster of speakers that includes political, business and academic leaders, media

personalities and staff development experts who will lead a wide range of thought-provoking panels and workshops. "It's an ideal opportunity for staff to gain exposure to an incredibly diverse and dynamic group of people. Their knowledge and insight will help all of us better understand what Vision 2003 is all about, what kind of difference it will make to the college, and how each of us can help the college to get there.

"It's also a chance to spend time with colleagues you don't normally interact with. We have loads of experience and knowledge we can share with each other. Invariably, we learn and we have fun when we're together like this."

Watch for more information

on registration details, speaker profiles and presentations in later issues of City College News. "There are lots of sessions to choose from but remember to sign up early so you have the best chance of getting your first choices in seminars," advises Cooke.

For more information on "Ramping Up For Success," contact Hilde Zimmer at 416-415-4724.

Some of the best who will be participating in "Ramping Up For Success":

Samy Chong, Founder of the Ho Lee Chow Restaurant chain

David Crombie, Former Toronto Mayor and Founder of Waterfront Regeneration Trust

Ursula Franklin, Professor of Metallurgy and Massey Lecturer at the University of Toronto

Crystal Kuykendall, Author, Lawyer, past Director National Alliance of Black Educators

Mary Lawson, Vice-President of Dalerose Homes and GBC Governor

Stuart Maclean, Host of CBC's Vinyl Café and Professor of Journalism at Ryerson University

Akela Peoples, Executive Director of Women in Motion

Rob Pritchard, President of Torstar Corporation

Karen Radford, Vice-President of Customer Service at Telus

Shirley Sharkey, CEO of St. Elizabeth Health Care and GBC Governor

Haroon Siddiqui, Award-winning Journalist for the Toronto Star

Doug Sole, Percussionist with Soul Drums

Patricia Thornton, Staff Satisfaction Consultant and Workshop Leader

Jeff Santos packages pastries at the Hospitality and Tourism's Christmas Bake Sale on December 10. Student-produced baking is available throughout the year from Monday to Friday between 12:30 and 1:30pm. Call 416-415-2515 after 9:00am for the daily selection.

The Annual Staff Children's Winter Celebration was held on December 8 at Casa Loma campus. More than 175 children and 140 parents attended the event, which included arts and crafts, mini-car rides and other fun activities assisted by 75 volunteers.

Athletics Manager is a man of strong convictions

Alex Barbier, Manager of Athletics and Student Life at George Brown College, is a man of strong convictions. Having spent the past 27 years in teaching athletics – with the exception of playing one year of professional hockey in Europe – he has worked hard at instilling a sense of commitment and fair play in others.

When Barbier isn't managing the college's 11 varsity athletic programs, he and his staff of six are busy putting together a variety of inter-collegiate sports, intra-mural recreation, and community-based programs. In addition, they manage a range of campus-wide Student Life programs, including such favourites as Talent Treks and African Heritage Month activities.

In his younger days, Barbier had no particular preference when it came to playing sports. He tried everything, and says that experience taught him to value diversity in all areas. "One of my favourite sayings is from John Wooden, a former UCLA coach who said 'An athlete should go out and experience the world, and not just the sport.' In my mind, the great athletes see the broader picture and that a particular sport is only part of one's overall success."

For Barbier sports are, above all else, about the community. "I feel very strongly that the benefits derived from sports are of value to the community. It's not just about winning. I'd rather watch kids playing sports in a park than go to a professional game any day, because that's where sports really count. I guess it's all in how you define success."

He's particularly proud of the depth of the athletics programs available at George Brown and credits staff with helping him build one of the most diverse college athletics programs in Ontario. Among other distinctions, George Brown is one of only three colleges in the province with a team that participates in the Canadian Inter-Collegiate Baseball Association.

Sports excellence is far from being his only focus for stu-

and part-time staff that is committed to helping students meet their goals. "What's really great is I get to work with a caring staff that shares

Alex Barbier (left) with members of the Athletics and Student Life team: Lisa Trudel, Dwayne Hines, Erika Forde and Marc Madramootoo.

dents, however. Barbier says every effort is put into tracking the athletes' academic progress. "You have to appreciate the efforts in the classroom, as well as on the gym floor or in the field. They have to understand that balance is important."

Barbier says he appreciates having the chance to work with a highly motivated full-

a fundamental belief in participation and good sportsmanship. They have been instrumental in bringing a wider range of programs to the students, and what they do within the college and the community is respected and appreciated by people who come in contact with them. They're the real reason for the success of our programs."

Group Dynamics students apply skills in the real world

This year, the Child and Youth Worker program's Group Dynamics course decided to move part of its teaching out of the classroom and take a more hands-on approach to delivering course content. During the Fall semester, more than 100 day and evening students took on an assignment to develop and organize a fund-raising effort of their choosing.

According to Rick Kelly, teacher in the Child and Youth Worker program, the effort "allowed students to learn about effective group processes in a very practical way. It became education in the service of the community."

Kelly reports that the results were exceptional, with some groups raising as much as $1000. "But the rewards weren't necessarily monetary. One group organized a city-wide basketball tournament with players from across the Greater Toronto Area to promote community involvement. It was a wonderful way for them to demonstrate their professionalism, responsibility to the community and good citizenship."

The charities included the college food bank, Out of the Cold, Starlight Foundation, Make-a-Wish Foundation,

Rosalie Hall, Nellie's Hostel, Share the Magic for the National Ballet, Robertson

House, the Brampton Minor Hockey League and the John Innes Community Centre.

Child and Youth Worker program teacher Roberto Allen (centre, seated), with a group of second-year students in the program.

SuperBuild construction starting at Casa Loma and St. James

The long-awaited physical transformation of George Brown will begin this month as the college breaks ground on its most massive building program in three decades.

At the end of the 18-month, $29-million building program, Casa Loma campus will look dramatically different, and the college will have lots of bright new teaching space and student service facilities. As a result of the building, the college will have capacity for 2,300 more full-time students in fall 2003 – a 25 per cent increase from current enrolment.

Construction crews are expected to put up hoardings in December at Casa Loma and St. James as the first visible step in the college's two on-campus SuperBuild projects, says Bashar Amer, George Brown's Director of Facilities Management.

A third SuperBuild project, created jointly with Ryerson University, is currently under construction at Ryerson's campus.

Once crews have hoardings in place they will move quickly to demolish 146 Kendal Ave. at Casa Loma and begin digging into the parking lot behind the Hospitality and Tourism building at 300 Adelaide Street East. Then new four-story buildings will be erected on the parking lot and at Casa Loma.

The beginning of work on the two sites comes after almost two years of planning and preparation that began when Ontario government funding for the projects was announced in February, 2000.

Since then, college staff have been working with City of Toronto politicians and staff, as well as project manager Consult Hanscomb Project Inc. and architects Moffat-Kinoshita, in planning and designing the buildings and other changes to the campuses.

The $10 million St. James building, by Kenaidan Construction Group Ltd., will add 48,000 square feet of space, most of which will be classroom space to accommodate up to 1200 new students. The space will be used primarily by School of Business students.

Eastern Construction has been awarded the $19 million contract to build the four-level and basement, 117,000 square foot building at Casa Loma that will replace two old buildings (146 Kendal Ave. and 37 Dartnell Ave.) for a net increase of 23,000 square feet. The new building will feature classrooms and labs for Faculty of Technology students, a Student Centre, food court, restaurant, meeting rooms and offices. Once construction of the new building is complete, 37 Dartnell will be demolished and a parkette built on its site.

Both new facilities at St. James and Casa Loma will feature additional computer labs, classrooms, office space and better wheelchair accessibility. The St. James building will also have a new pedestrian walkway from Richmond Street as well as a walkway from Adelaide Street and entry points on three floors through the Hospitality and Tourism Building. An elevator is currently being installed in the Hospitality Building just inside the front doors. Right now, people in wheelchairs have to enter the building through the rear entrance off the parking lot.

Construction on the new buildings will run uninterrupted through two winters.

To minimize disruption to staff and students, and to avoid hindering area traffic, the two building sites will be isolated from the campuses, with the least busy streets designated for use by the builders. The project team will conduct regular health and safety inspections as the project progresses. There are no planned interruptions of power, heating, ventilation or cooling systems of existing buildings.

Trees will be planted around the new St. James and Casa Loma facilities as part of the project.

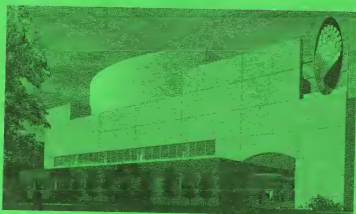

"We're not simply putting up a new building, we're attempting to change the entire landscape of the campus...With the new facilities and landscaped grounds, we will create a whole new image for Casa Loma," says Amer.

The SuperBuild program also includes the addition of two floors to Ryerson University's Eric Palin Hall. These will be devoted to programs in the new jointly-operated Centre for Studies in Community Health, including George Brown's Early Childhood Education and Activation Co-ordinator (Gerontology) programs. Construction began this fall and is scheduled for completion by the summer of 2002.

For the next 18 months City College News will be providing a monthly progress report on this very important initiative.

The new building on the Casa Loma campus will replace both 146 Kendal Ave. and 37 Dartnell Ave.

The new building on the St. James campus will replace the parking lot now behind the Hospitality and Tourism building.

Marketing students caroled around the college on December 6 in support of a Toronto family in need. Through the donations they raised, carolers (l to r) Alexandra Tran, Gillian Hutchinson, Tricia Van Veen, Tara Farrell, and Mary Jane Hill are providing a local family with necessities as well as wish-list items such as winter jackets. Their effort was organized by the Red Door Shelter.

The George Brown College Senior's Association granted scholarships to three nursing students on October 17. Tobie Isaacs (second from left), who presented the awards, stands here with (l to r) Michael Cooke, VP of Academic Excellence; Pat Coward, Dean of Community Services; and the three scholarship recipients, Sheila Cannon, Sasha Ali and Xiaoyun Yu.

Nine Hospitality and Tourism students volunteered along with celebrity chefs at the Starlight Children's Foundation fund raiser on November 10. Starlight Children's Foundation is a worldwide organization that grants wishes and provides entertainment to chronically and terminally ill children aged 4 through 18 years. More than 700 guests attended the event held at the International Plaza Hotel. Chefs for the evening included Michael Smith from "The Chef at Large" and Pasquale, "The Singing Chef." John Higgins, executive chef at the King Edward Hotel – seen here with George Brown students Voulas Kalaitzis (left) and Andrea Pavic – was in charge of hors d'oeuvres.

upcoming events

Web Page Development Workshop - Learning Innovations & Academic Development

Friday, December 14 (9:00am to 12:00pm)

Casa Loma Campus, 160 Kendal Ave., Studio C, 4th Floor

Call Linda Purser at (416) 415-2000, ext. 4661 to register. For more information, contact Shirley Lesch, ext. 2867.

Free Career Planning Workshop – Continuing Education

Monday, January 14 (6:30 to 9:30pm)

St. James Campus, 200 King St. E., Room 128

Advance registration required. Call (416) 415-2000, ext. 3444 and press 1 to register.

news briefs

George Brown answering future staffing needs

A recent study from the Association of College of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario says that Ontario colleges will be facing a hiring crunch by 2006. According to the report, Ontario's community colleges will need to hire more than 7,000 new faculty and staff – which represents more than half its current workforce – due to retirements and an anticipated boom in enrolment. Nancy Hood, Executive Director of Human Resources for George Brown College, says that, assuming the accuracy of the projections for enrolment and retirements and the availability of government funding to support staffing increases, George Brown will be hiring approximately 100 new staff a year through to 2006.

ECE students and faculty are Jamaica bound

On December 8th, graduates from the Early Childhood Education Program at George Brown, along with faculty members Gail Hunter and Lynn Wilson, convened at the Beaches Recreation Centre to swim 1200 metres – the distance from Montego Bay to Negril. The swimathon was part of a fund-raising campaign to send the group to Savanna La Mar, just outside of Negril, Jamaica from April 26 to May 11. There they will be volunteering in primary schools to develop an understanding and appreciation of another culture and to work as part of a team with teachers in Jamaica. The fund-raising efforts are to support travel expenses, as well as to purchase resources such as books, puzzles, art supplies and materials to create teaching aids. The next fund-raising event will be a children's concert in the Casa Loma campus auditorium on Saturday, January 26 from 2:00pm to 4:00pm.

city college news

is a publication of the Communications and Marketing Department, George Brown College, at 200 King St. East, Toronto, M5T 2T9 Room 542E
Story ideas? Contact Rosalie Starkey at 415-4842 or rstarkey@gbrown.on.ca
Editor: Ed Tracy Writers: Denise Deveau and Neil McGillivray
Contents copyright George Brown College, 2001.